

Karen's gadgets & gizmos

 A photograph showing the interior of a car door. A grey, adjustable handle is attached to the inner door panel, extending outwards for easy exit.	Car attachable handle to grab on to when getting out of the car. And the DMV handicap parking sticker.
 A photograph of two red plates with raised rims placed on a dark, reflective kitchen counter. A small decorative tray and a pepper mill are visible in the background.	Plates with rims so food doesn't slide off.
 A photograph of three green, tapered plastic cups standing upright on a dark, reflective surface. The cups are designed to be held upside down to assist with feeding.	Cups to help with swallowing. Cut out for the nose so one can put the chin down rather than up.
 A photograph of a shower floor with light-colored tiles. Three black, non-slip adhesive strips are applied to the floor, forming a vertical line and a small circle.	Course non slip stick ones for safety in the shower
 A photograph of a person's feet wearing grey and blue running shoes. The laces are white and appear to be lock laces, which are designed to stay tied.	Lock laces for shoes to slip on and no tying necessary. Come in many colors and quantities.

Painting tape arrow to help get the key into the hole. This one was a life saver.

Light weight colorful small "man bag". I prepare this bag each morning for independent outings with all necessities ready to go. Too bright to lose. Solved losing wallet, credit cards, keys glasses and pills. Holds a water bottle too.
